

In my application users select a year from a list of radio buttons and the form returns the presidential candidates from that year. There are two dynamic links: `localhost:5000/candidates/<candidateName>` and `localhost:5000/party/<partyName>`. To use the first link type the name of any person who has ever ran for president of the United States. For best result put a space in between the person's first and last name. To use the second name type one of the two main political parties (democrat or republican).
